The 47th annual Cincinnati Pride Parade and Festival has been postponed due to concerns over the spread of the coronavirus, organizers announced Friday.

A statement on the Cincinnati Pride website read: “Due to the continued uncertainty regarding the Covid-19 pandemic, the Cincinnati Pride Board of Directors have decided to err on the side of caution and postpone all upcoming events. This unfortunately includes the festival and parade scheduled to take place on June 27th.”

A new date has not yet been set for the event. The statement said organizers are working with local and state officials to secure a date later in the year.

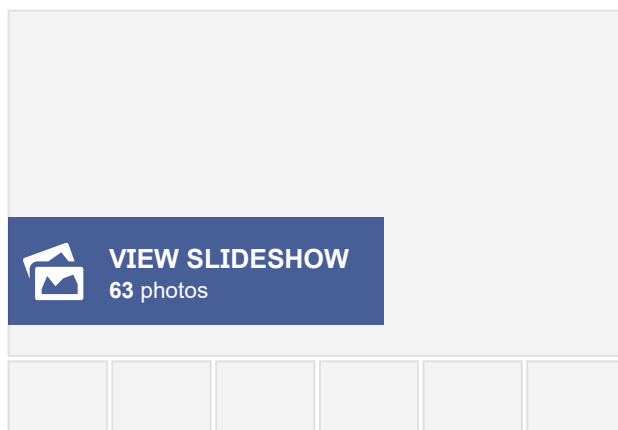

Anyone interested in volunteering to be part of next year's Pride planning committee can email info@cincinnatipride.org for information.

Last year's Cincinnati Pride parade, which honored the 50th anniversary of the Stonewall uprising and the birth of modern LGBTQ movement, drew a record number of participants, officials said.
